About the Institute
The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library’s activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

General Impressions of track today and coming out near Red Butte on the Cades Cove Rd along Little River.

Chesnut-preliminary almost regardless of slope elevation + cove hardwoods + M Y limited to corn or not occupying general of pasture by thesis but northerly.

In many places on the lower slopes near Cades Cove, Va.

Blue appears to prevail on the red soil.

Why does not M Y project on the slope of the ridge? Rock relation important in the soil for problems. Why should it in an old region? The areas of "cove hardwood" could easily be counted in the west half of the park (John Helsel, King) in the last half, which came to me? Ramsey Ypsil, Porter?
