About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

CORPUS HISTORICUM,

BEING

TRANSLATIONS

GREEK AND ROMAN CLASSICS.

NOW FIRST PUBLISHED IN THIS COMPLETE FORM, AND AT ONE-THIRD OF THEIR ORIGINAL PRICE, WHICH IS EFFECTED BY THE REPRINTING THEM IN A LARGE ROYAL OCTAVO PAGE, WITH AN ELEGANT TYPE, AND WITH THE DISUSE OF THE WIDE MARGINS IN THE ORIGINAL WORKS.

IT has frequently been a subject of regret amongst Statesmen and general Scholars, that whereas every other kingdom in Europe possesses complete Translations of the Classic Writers, those original sources, as Bacon terms them, of wisdom, prudence, and of the early history of mankind, England alone has hitherto possessed nothing of the kind; her Translations of the Classics consisting only of a few detached Authors, and omitting every thing like a chain or connected series of the Greek and Roman Historians and Philosophers. The Italians, says Lord Chesterfield, in his Letters to his Son, possess a magnificent and most valuable Collection of the Classic Authors, which they term their COLLANA, or connected Series of Greek and Roman History, by the authors cotemporary with the events they relate. The French have made great advances in the execution of the same design, having translated Arrian, and other works hitherto existing only in the learned languages. But in England we have nothing of the kind; and Gibbon speaks to the same effect in his Memoirs, where he laments the time and trouble consumed in reading many of the writers of the Augustan History in the corrupt language in use in the latter period of the Roman History; because, adds he, no one in England has yet published any Translations. But in France, continues he, this has been already done; in good part at least, by the exact and laborious industry of Tirlemont, and the other writers of the History of the Emperors.

The object of the Editors of this COMPLETE EDITION of "The Translations of the Greek and Roman Classics," has been to supply this defect, and thereby to supply the British Public with a complete and connected Series of the Greek and Roman writers, reprinted verbatim from the best Translations, and by the disuse of wide margins, and the adoption of a new mode of letter-press, with respect to the spaces between the lines, reprinted at one-third, and in many cases, at one-tenth, of their present selling prices.

As the greater portion of these writers refer to Greek and Roman History by the writers cotemporary with the events they relate, this "Complete Edition of Translations" has been hitherto called by the Editors the CORPUS HISTORICUM, and has already obtained a very wide circulation in the literary and learned world under that appellation. In order to exhibit the ability and extent of this Complete Edition, the Editors have only to invite the public attention to the Authors included by this Corpus Historicum. The Editors divided it, in their Original Plan, into Three Series, of the Greek, Roman, Ancient Chronicles, and Modern History. Under these Series the "Complete Edition of Translations," &c. contains the following Writers already published.

I. The GREEK SERIES begins with the earliest period of History, and comprehends all the Writers down to the dissolution of the Achaean Confederacy, when the independence of Greece was lost in the Roman Dominion.—Herodotus, Thucydides, Xenophon, Arrian, Polybius, Diodorus Siculus, Plutarch, &c. with the Geographical Works of Strabo and Ptolemy (translations of which are preparing), will be comprehended in this Series.

Of this Series are already published, and may be had complete, in royal octavo volumes, neatly done up in boards, at the prices affixed :

II. The ROMAN SERIES begins with the first period of Roman History, and comprehends all the Writers down to the Emperor Charlemagne, with whom the ancient part of modern History may be said to commence. The Roman Series, therefore, will contain all the Classical Historians, — all the Writers of the Augustan History, and the Byzantine Writers, the greater part of which have never been translated, and are books of the utmost scarcity.

1. The Works of TACITUS, with an Essay on his Life and Genius, by ARTHUR MURPHY, Esq. 2 volumes	1 6 0

4. The History of COUNTESS ZOSIMUS, sometime Advocate and Chancellor of the Roman Empire, complete in 1 volume	0 5 6

III. The SERIES of the ANCIENT CHRONICLES will contain all the ancient cotemporary Historians, Chroniclers, and Memoir-writers, from the Emperor Charlemagne of France and Harold of England, to the death of Henry the 7th of England, and the reign of the Emperor Charles the 5th of Germany. The Chronicles of Froissart, Monstrelet, Grafton, &c. and all the original Historians of their own adventures in the Crusades, will be included in this Series.

1. The ANCIENT CHRONICLES of Sir JOHN FROISSART, of England, France, Spain, Portugal, Scotland, Brittany, and Flanders, translated by the command of King Henry VIII. by Lord BERNERS, 4 volumes	2 13 6
2. HISTORICAL MEMOIR of PHILIP DE COMINES, containing the Transactions of Lewis XI. and of Charles VIII. of France, and of Edward IV. and Henry VII. of England; also the Secret History of Louis XI. otherwise called the SCANDALOUS CHRONICLE, 1 large volume	0 13 0

 The Corpus Historicum, was originally published in Monthly Parts, price 2s. 6d. each; but the Stock of that Work having now passed into other hands, and the present Proprietors having reduced the price of it more than one-third, they now offer it in complete Works, done up in boards, at the prices affixed, at the same time they beg to inform the Public, that odd Numbers may be had to complete Sets, at the original price of 2s. 6d. each.

In addition to this Work, and in elucidation and illustration of it, the same Editors have likewise published, for the Use of the Universities, Public Schools, Public Libraries, and all readers who wish to understand (as they read) the Greek and Roman Historians,

D'ANVILLE'S ATLAS,

AND

GEOGRAPHY OF THE ANCIENTS.

The price of the Paris Edition of this Work is Twelve Guineas. The price of this Edition, though on the same Atlas size, on superior paper, and superior in execution, is only Five Guineas, half-bound, or in Fifteen Numbers, price 6s. each.

In pursuance of the same general design, namely, the facilitating the acquisition of an exact and learned information, the same Editors have likewise published the following eminently useful Work, (for the purpose of Self-instruction):

A COURSE
COLLEGIATE EDUCATION,

being the course, and the Books followed, in the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and now published for the purpose of Self-Instruction of Officers and Gentlemen, who, from having entered early upon their Profession, have not had the benefit of these Institutions.

Three Volumes of this Work are published.

Vol. I.—The Oxford Elements of Logic. Burlamaqui's Principles of Natural and Politic Law.	} 1 14 6
Vol. II.—Paley's Principles of Moral and Natural Philosophy. Hallifax's Elements of the Roman Civil Law.
Vol. III.—Port Royal Art of Thinking. Reid's Inquiry into the Human Mind. Burke on the Sublime and Beautiful.

This Work will be found of the most eminent use to those Self-Students who desire to possess that exact Knowledge of Philosophy and practical Logic, for which the two Universities are so justly celebrated; the Logic of the Universities being, in the Opinion of Newton, a most judicious and learned adaptation of the System of Aristotle to the real Purposes of Life.
