About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

(Dear Sir,
I thank you for your very kind letter. I shall leave London, with my family, for Liverpool, on Friday, next, and shall make as little delay as possible in the road.
I shall, I trust, be in Liverpool in time for the vessel you mention. Still I cannot ask you to take passage for me, for fear of some accident: & the more so, as other vessels are to sail. But to say to the Commissioner, that you fully expect Horton & his family to go with him in his vessel. Nothing will prevent me going in the Anna Maria, if she be at Liverpool, when I arrive, & if she have good places for us.

Your friend, with great respect.

M. L. Horton.
August 20.

London,
"Sunday". 15.

Presented by George Soley, Esq.

P.S. Being an invalid, I am very anxious about a good birth in the vessel: and, without absolutely ly enjoying my passage, if you can say something like it, to the Captain, I will thank you.
