About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

Will you give the accompanying pamphlet to Messrs. Thénard, Gay Lussac, Dulong, Petit, all <sup>the</sup> Chemists, or to editors of any scientific journals in Paris -

My Dear Sir

You will oblige me by presenting the letter to Daniel Parker, one of Count Rumford's executors, & obtaining from him a verbal answer - I have no special expectation that any thing will come of it, as I presume the Count's daughter & domestics are all living. But if otherwise, you shall have the use of any balance which you may collect of Messrs. Welles & Co who are agents for the College, & my thanks to boot

Yrs truly JWB

Boston Sept 25 1828

Messrs. Welles & Co

If any balance is found due to me from Count Rumford's estate, by the decease of annuitants, you will please to pay the same to Benj. A. Gould Esq & oblige
