About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

KÖNIGL. BOTANISCHES MUSEUM.

Berlin, W., 22 Febr. 1894
Grünwaldstr. 6-7.

Dear Sir!

I have received now two packages
of plants of the Kistman-Njaro, collected by Dr. W. H. Abbott. It will not be difficult, to make the identifications;
but You have written:

"and the duplicates are also forwarded to you unmounted".

I do not receive any plant unmounted, although You had written before, that there is a great many of duplicates.

Formerly I did receive the contributions
from the U. S. National Herbarium,
but now they did not come to me.

I regret this, as I have always a great interest in the progress of the knowledge of the American Flora.

I have only

Vol I. No. IV. V. VI. VII. VIII.

II. No. I. II.

III. No. I.

I do not receive your own work on the Flora of the Dead Sea etc.

As the Botanische Jahrbücher are edited by a bookseller, I am not able to send them in exchange, but I can give separata
of my official papers.

Yours very truly

A. Engler
