About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

Monsieur,

On vient de me communiquer la dernière édition de votre flore des environs de Paris, je suis fâché de ne pas vous avoir adressé quelques notes que j'ai prises relativement à plusieurs plantes nouvelles, qui n'y sont pas décrites, et que j'ai trouvées dans nos environs, ainsi que des localités pour des plantes rares.

Si toutefois vous en avez besoin, soit pour une autre édition ou pour un supplément, elles sont entièrement à votre disposition, veuillez me les demander, je m'empresserai de vous les communiquer.

Recevez, Monsieur, l'assurance de ma considération Distinguée

Votre très humble serviteur.
