About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

J. Trevelyan Esq
Rozal Hotel

Friday

Wells' very respectful compliments - He learned from Dr. Hooker that Mr Trevelyan was at the Royal Hotel, & said he would call. He is delayed by W. Caryon on very short notice, & is thus re-vented. - He heard last week of Mr Trevelyan jnr. being expected in Lewis by a fishing vessel from Faro - But possibly he may by this time have reached home. — Has got the greenhouse much improved, & an alpine frame which he would be glad that Mr. Devolger saw, as it seems good.

Respects to the family.
Remained to Mrs. Miss
Devolger.
