About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

asking questions about Localities specimens collected by myself, could be found on map

Cambria May 14/95

My dear Dr Palmer

I am much obliged to you for your kind reply to my inquiries, giving me all I desire to know. The only other locality of your collecting I need to know about is Tighe Station in California. If you could give me the approximate Lat. & Long. of that place on a good map (or tell me in what Federal County it is) I should be much obliged.
It is not in the Postal Guide.

I am sorry to hear you are not very well; with so much of your life out of doors you should be tolerably robust.
Your collections prove among the most valuable I have & give me lots of work -

Your answers are in ample season, as my MS. is not yet quite ready to forward

With best wishes

Most truly Yours

Wm. A. Fendler

P.S. I find no more locality that needs fixing closer and that is Saltillo Mex
