About the Institute

The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

Dear Sir.

Last autumn Dr.
J. Hooker and myself proposed you as a Member of the Imperial
L. L. Academy of Germany, and I have now the pleasure of forwarding to you the Diploma. It must be left to your generosity
if an accep-

the honours you pay for the printing of the Document, registration fee to the clerk &c. If you should wish to do so I shall be most happy to transmit whichever sum you may think fit to send to me for this purpose.

Independent of that optional charge I have paid for you four shillings postage, which you can send in postage stamps.

Hoping that you are pleased with the edition

Believe me

Truly yours

Arthur de Lencastre
Dr.
