About the Institute
The Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation, a research division of Carnegie Mellon University, specializes in the history of botany and all aspects of plant science and serves the international scientific community through research and documentation. To this end, the Institute acquires and maintains authoritative collections of books, plant images, manuscripts, portraits and data files, and provides publications and other modes of information service. The Institute meets the reference needs of botanists, biologists, historians, conservationists, librarians, bibliographers and the public at large, especially those concerned with any aspect of the North American flora.

Hunt Institute was dedicated in 1961 as the Rachel McMasters Miller Hunt Botanical Library, an international center for bibliographical research and service in the interests of botany and horticulture, as well as a center for the study of all aspects of the history of the plant sciences. By 1971 the Library's activities had so diversified that the name was changed to Hunt Institute for Botanical Documentation. Growth in collections and research projects led to the establishment of four programmatic departments: Archives, Art, Bibliography and the Library.

Prof. Dr. HANS SCHINZ.

Zurich, 15.VII.23

My dear friend,

Dr.J.Strohl, a friend of mine, Director of the Concilium bibliographicum and Professor of Zoology leaves to morrow Zurich for London. His intention is to have a conference with the Secretary of the London Zoological Society, M.Chalmers Mitchell, F.R.S.. to study the possibilities of a cooperation between the Zoological Record and the Concilium bibliographicum.

The Swiss Society for Natural History is largely interested in this matter and so am I as member of the council of the named society..

You know all the scientific men in London and might lend my friend Strohl a hand in introducing him to one or two of them.

I thank you for all you can do for Prof.Strohl and I beg to believe me Yours very sincerly

Hans Schinz
